PR-Z 158 · History and Nature Route

A route through the surroundings of Fabara begins its course together with the route of the Lower Matarraña Fabara–Nonaspe. After a first shared section, it starts its independence beyond the Roman Mausoleum when it fords the course of the river and, after going around a picturesque cliff, returns to the town, but not before visiting the ecological sewage treatment plant. In short, it is a cycling and hiking proposal that is pleasant, of moderate length, and accessible to all people.

The route starts at the recreational park and swimming pool area, and crosses the Matarraña bridge towards Maella. Shortly after, it leaves the asphalt and turns right on the track that leads to the Roman Mausoleum. After this fascinating archaeological milestone, the PR-Z 158 separates to the right towards a farm road. It reaches the reed bed and the acequia service area and runs along a path under the acequia and next to the riparian forest.

After passing by a gauging station and a weir, the route continues along the riverside path that surrounds the entire meander of the river until it reaches the track along which the Lower Matarraña route passes.

It connects with the said route for about 100 meters, until the PR-Z 158 deviates on a farm road to the right to ford the Matarraña river.

A new trail surrounds the entire cliff before going up the valley near the Matarraña groves. It reaches the road and continues along it for 1.4 km. At km 25, it turns right onto a farm road that circles the hill, crosses an almond farm along the edge and continues until it reaches the cemented track that returns to Fabara.

It passes next to the ecological treatment plant of Fabara and a small stretch of road gives access to the town center, ending the route.
